1. Regulatory Background

The Higher Education and Research Act 2017 defines “a student transfer” as being where -

(a) a student transfers from a higher education course (“course X”) provided by a UK higher education provider (“the transferring provider”) to a different higher education course (“course Y”) provided by the same or a different UK higher education provider (“the receiving provider”);

(b) the receiving provider recognises, or takes account of, the study undertaken, or a level of achievement attained, by the student—

- (i) on course X, or
- (ii) on another higher education course provided by the transferring provider, when the receiving provider is determining the study to be undertaken, or the level of achievement attained, by the student on course Y, and

(c) either the transferring provider or the receiving provider is a registered higher education provider, or both are registered higher education providers.

Transferring is the process whereby a current student, either at St Helens College or at another institution, moves from one higher education programme to another, or one mode of study, for example full time to part time, to another. This includes students transferring to St Helens College from another institution; transferring from St Helens College to another institution; transferring between St Helens College higher education programmes; or transferring to a different mode of study, for example from full-time to part-time.

2. Scope of the Policy

This policy applies to potential higher education students external to St Helens College; current St Helens College students on higher education programmes; and St Helens College staff involved in the transfer process.

The College is aware that occasionally, a student may seek to change their programme of study; this may be for a number of reasons. It may be the student has decided that they no longer have an academic interest in the subject for which they initially registered or that they wish to pursue another subject. In either case, dependent upon circumstances, the following procedures should be applied.

3. Internal applications for transferring between St Helens College’s higher education programmes

St Helens College’s higher education programmes are validated by the following Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) / awarding organisations:

- The University of Central Lancashire (UCLan)

- The University of Chester
- Liverpool John Moores University (LJMU)
- Pearson

Each validating HEI / awarding organisation has its own process for application to transfer programme. Students, in principle, can transfer between programmes, subject to approval, but there is no automatic right of transfer between programmes. Transfer is subject to sufficient space being available and the applicant meeting the academic criteria and requirements for the new programme.

In-year transfers to or between St Helens College Higher Education programmes will not normally be permitted if more than 2 weeks of the academic year has elapsed as it becomes increasingly difficult to catch up on the content of a new programme, especially where practical work is concerned; however, each application will be considered based on its own individual circumstances.

If you are already enrolled on a higher education programme at St Helens College and wish to transfer to another programme, you must contact your existing Programme Leader as soon as possible to notify them of your request to apply to transfer who will provide advice and guidance on the application process.

Procedures for application to transfer must follow those set within the regulations of awarding/validating bodies and it must be noted that there may be financial implications for students transferring programmes. Useful reference points to inform your decisions are:

4. Internal applications for transferring from a St Helens College higher education programme to another institution

All Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) and awarding organisations will have their own regulatory requirements governing students transferring to their programmes. If you want to transfer from a St Helens College higher education programme onto a programme awarded by another HEI, you are advised to contact the Admissions Department of the HEI that you want to transfer to for advice and guidance.

In all cases, please inform your Programme Leader of your intentions so that they can provide you with support and advice as appropriate.

You can also access further support, if necessary, by contacting our College Careers Officer, Paul Whitehead:

5. External applications to transfer to a St Helens College higher education programme from another institution

If you are applying to transfer to a St Helens College higher education programme from another institution, then you will normally have to either meet the academic entry requirements for the new programme or be able to provide evidence of Accreditation of Prior Experience and Learning (APEL) or Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL). APEL/RPL is the process used to assess and formally recognise learning that has taken place in the past with the aim of gaining exemption from part of the course. Such learning may have been:

- undertaken at another educational institution where qualifications and academic credits were achieved;
- attained from experiences outside the formal education and training systems (e.g. work/ life experience).

Applications for APEL/RPL are considered by the appropriate validating/awarding body prior to enrolment. The prior learning or experience must be relevant to the applicant's proposed new course of study. Procedures for recognising APEL/RPL must follow those set up in the regulations of validating/awarding Bodies and is usually facilitated by the Programme Leader in conjunction with the relevant HEI.

If you want to transfer to a St Helens College higher education programme and/or apply for APEL/RPL consideration, you will need to contact either the relevant Programme Leader or the Admissions Team admissions@sthelens.ac.uk in the first instance for further guidance.

6. Transferring Mode of Study

On some of the higher education programmes offered by St Helens College it is possible to transfer from a full time to part time mode of study and vice versa. Please contact your Programme Leader in the first instance to see if this is possible on your programme of study. If applicable, they will then provide you with the appropriate advice and guidance through the transfer process.

Please note that there may be financial implications for students transferring study mode. For support with questions or concerns regarding student finance, you can contact Kieron Potter, Student Finance, Welfare and Guidance Manager:
